Says Local Agencies Tend To Analyze Others

The rapid growth of central Jewish community organizations during the last 25 years has been outstanding in the development of American Jewish life, H. L. Lurie, executive director of the Council of Jewish Federations and Welfare Funds, declares in the May issue of "Jewish Community," the CJFWF magazine. He points out that 54 communities had functioning central agencies in 1925. Within a span of 25 years the number of communal units has grown to over 300 serving 800 cities and towns with some Jewish population. Paralleling this growth of organization, there was also an unprecedented increase in the dollars contributed to Jewish programs and services "from an estimated $24,000,000 in 1925 to a figure nearly ten times as great in 1949."

These significant developments in central organization, Mr. Lurie explains, were brought to light in a recent study conducted by the CJFWF on intermediate cities with Jewish population ranging from 5,000 to 40,000. The CJFWF previously has studied communities over 40,000. The study revealed that there is a definite trend today to broaden the scope of central organizations. They are increasingly becoming "concerned not only with fund raising, but with community planning as well." Mr. Lurie adds: "As Jewish needs increased concurrently with lack of expansion of community chest funds, local service agencies, especially those with cultural or sectarian objectives, turned to the Jewish welfare funds for their maintenance and growth. Thus, [illegible] Jewish organization is [illegible] and [illegible]

A.J.C. Hears Speech Barred By Bnai Brith

Benjamin J. Buttenwieser, Assistant United States High Commissioner of Germany, who was denied a platform by the Anti-Defamation League of Bnai Brith in its Chicago Conference, because of disagreement with the de-Nazification policies he proposed, delivered to another influential Jewish group substantially the same address he had prepared for the A. D. L. meeting.

Mr. Buttenwieser spoke and answered questions for two hours at a closed meeting of the committee on Germany of the American Jewish Committee at the Harmonie Club, 4 East Sixtieth Street, New York. It was learned that his appearance had been arranged far before the controversy was started over Mr. Buttenwieser's views on de-Nazification, according to the New York Herald Tribune.

Mr. Buttenwieser's thesis was that with many Nazis punished, even though some have escaped, the time had come for leniency so that Germany may start being a democratic and anti-totalitarian member of the family of nations.

The members of the American Jewish Committee's committee on Germany were not empowered to act on the report. The last official statement on the German situation by the A. J. C. was the adoption of a resolution on April 30 at the quarterly meeting of the organization's national executive committee advocating a Congressional appropriation of $15,000,000 for education in Germany. The resolution also called for a Presidential commission to ascertain the facts and the seriousness of the threats of [illegible]

Invited To Speak In Rome For Work On Sacred Music

The common source of Jewish and Christian liturgical music in the ancient Jewish Temple in Jerusalem, a subject of controversy for almost 2,000 years, has been substantiated by Dr. Eric Werner, a leading American musicologist, composer, and teacher. The Hebrew Union College-Jewish Institute of Religion announces that Dr. Werner, after careful analysis of synagogue and church music and liturgy, and after exhaustive investigations of several European and Middle East sources, has established and documented the common origin of the music and liturgy, which has long been the contention of the Roman Catholic Church. Dr. Werner is professor of Jewish Music at the HUC-JIR and chairman of the executive committee of the Hebrew Union School of Sacred Music, in New York.

In recognition of Dr. Werner's original research in this field, Msgr. Prince Rampolla, Papal Secretary, has invited Dr. Werner to deliver an address on "The Interdependence of Synagogue, Byzantine and Gregorian Chant" before the International Congress of Catholic Church Music to be held at the Pontifical Institute of Sacred Music in Rome at a special Holy Year convocation beginning May 25. While in Rome, Dr. Werner, at the invitation of Msgr. Ignio Angles, prefect of the Pontifical Institute of Sacred Music, will present some papers on the common liturgical and music ground. These papers will be offered before an international group of scholars under the chairmanship of Cardinal Tisserand. The invitations are believed to be the first [illegible]

His investigations led him to collateral finds in the ritual of the Roman Catholic Church, Old Irish Church, North African Latin Church, Jacobite Church (Syria), Maronite Church (Syria), Nestorian Church (East Syria), Coptic Church (Egypt), Armenian Church and the Byzantine (Greek Orthodox) Church. He discovered: (1) Two Jewish Levitical singers from Jerusalem, Christian proselytes who had been brought to Rome by Pope Damasus I in the Fourth Century, transmitted the Jewish musical and liturgical tradition directly to the Roman Church. They are identified on burial markers in the Catacombs in Rome. (2) The origin of eight church tones can be traced to Jewish and, still further back, to ancient Hittite inspiration. (3) Almost all the psalm tones of the Roman and Armenian Churches can be found in chants of the Yemenite and Babylonian Jews who have not had any contact with the church or the rest of world Jewry during the historical period. (4) All the archaic strata of the Gregorian Chant are based on Jewish sources and modes. (5) The text of the famous church hymn, "Dies Irae," which is a part of every requiem, had its origin in Palestine under Byzantine domination. (6) Hebraisms occur in early Christian liturgies, especially in the liturgy of the Armenian Church.

Dr. Werner has presented his evidence in a book, The Sacred Bridge: Studies on the Liturgical and Musical Interdependence of Church and Synagogue During the First Millenium, which will be published in London next year. An authority on Jewish music and a fellow of the American Musicological Society, Dr. Werner came to the United States from Austria in 1938 to teach at the only American seminary of Liberal Judaism. He had studied at several conservatories and universities in Europe and received his doctorate from the University of Strasbourg, France. Before coming to the U.S. he was vice-president and professor of music at the Conservatory of Saarbruecken, and professor of music at the Jewish Gymnasium and at the Jewish Theological Seminary of Breslau.

His works have been performed by the Hindemith Quartet and the Orchestras of Saarbruecken and Frankfort, and in the United States by the Cincinnati and Minneapolis Symphony Orchestras. He is the author of the book, History of Jewish Folk Music, and many special articles in learned magazines including "The Doxology In Church and Synagogue"; "Music Theory and Philosophy in Judaeo-Arabic Literature"; "Musical

Scriptures In Hebrew Braille Completed

Publication of a Braille edition of the Hebrew scriptures, completed after five years of painstaking effort at a cost of more than $20,000, was announced by the Jewish Braille Institute of America. Completion of the 20 volumes, according to the institute, fills "a need that has been manifest for the past half-century and more," particularly for the spiritually sensitive Jewish blind and for many Braille-reading non-Jewish students of the Bible.

The project also entailed the development of the International Hebrew Braille Code to supersede and replace several regional Hebrew Braille alphabets that had long been considered inadequate. Leopold Dubov, executive vice-president of the institute, said the twenty-five copies comprising the first edition had been distributed and another edition was planned.

Copies of the volumes, which bring the ancient sacred text to the fingertips of the sightless, have gone to the Library for the Blind, 137 West Twenty-fifth Street, New York; the American Bible Society, the Jewish Historical Society, the Library of Congress, the Union of American Hebrew Congregations in Cincinnati, Hebrew University in Israel, Canon W. F. Waudby of England, to students for the Christian ministry, and to several individuals, including two Israeli soldiers who were blinded in the war with the Arabs and are in America for rehabilitation.

The Scriptures, beginning with Genesis and ending with Chronicles, were "translated" into Braille with the assistance of an advisory council of prominent rabbis and Biblical scholars. They included Dr. Samuel Belkin, president of Yeshiva University; Theodor H. [illegible] of the Jewish Theological Seminary; Dr. Leo Jung, Professor of Ethics at Yeshiva University; Dr. Julian Morgenstern, president emeritus of Hebrew Union College, Cincinnati; Dr. Abraham Neuman, president of Dropsie College, Philadelphia; Prof. Harry Orlinsky, of the Jewish Institute of Religion; Rabbi Elias L. Solomon of Congregation Shaare Zedek, in New York; and the late Rabbi Stephen S. Wise.

Mr. Dubov explained that when the institute was founded in 1931 "to minister to the cultural and religious needs of the Jewish blind of America and throughout the world," one of its most pressing problems was providing a universal Hebrew Braille alphabet.

It began work on the task with the appointment of "a competent and internationally representative committee" of which Mr. Dubov was chairman. After many delays, the committee finally adopted a completed Hebrew Braille alphabet in the summer of 1926. In later, extended tests of the code, a few minor changes in vowel symbols were made and finally adopted in 1944.

Soon after this, revision work on the "translation" was begun. The whole work of transcribing the master copy, from which the metal plates for this unique Bible were embossed — there are more than 3,000 pages — was done singly by Mrs. Harry A. Cole, of Cleveland. The volumes were printed by the American Printing House for the Blind at Louisville, Ky.

The project was financed by contributions from individuals and groups. The National Federation of Temple Sisterhoods, Mr. Dubov said, gave the Institute considerable impetus at its founding.

The International Hebrew Braille Code, Mr. Dubov explained, is essentially a phonetic adaptation of the English Braille alphabet. Wherever possible, consonants and vowels of the English alphabet are made to serve for their Hebrew equivalents in sound. Thus B is used for Bet; G for Gimmel; E for Segol; U for Kubbutz. Where no equivalent character is available, some other symbol selected for its Braille appropriateness is used.

Because vowel points used in printed Hebrew cannot be reproduced in Braille, Mr. Dubov said, it was necessary to adapt special signs for the vowels, semi-vowels and all other peculiarity Hebraic symbols required. In the code, vowels immediately follow the consonants they affect.

Unlike printed Hebrew, Hebrew Braille is read from left to right. This break with traditional usage, Mr. Dubov said, was made to conform with the general practice of all Western languages in order not to place a new difficulty in the way of the touch reader.

Christians Urge Arms U.S. Aid To Israel

The American Christian Palestine Committee urged President Truman and the State Department to take steps to halt British shipments of "aggressive arms" to Arab nations. It asked that Israel be permitted "to purchase arms in the United States" to prevent a "second round" of warfare in the Near East. The committee's recommendations, based on the findings of a delegation that visited Israel last month, were made public by Dr. Daniel A. Poling, editor of The Christian Herald, in its offices at 27 East Thirty-ninth Street, New York.

Declaring that an "uneasy armed truce" existed between the Arab states and Israel, with the latter fearing a "blitz attack," the group advocated the following program as "the only course of action capable of stabilizing the situation in the Near East."

1. Press for action through the United Nations as well as through direct negotiations with Great Britain to halt shipments of all aggressive arms to Arab nations, at least until a peace with Israel is signed.
2. Grant Israel the freedom to purchase arms in the United States, sufficient to meet her defensive needs and to assure an arms balance which may in itself be a deterrent to further aggression in the Near East.
3. Use the good offices of our Government to help Israel and the Arab states to convert their armistice agreements into a permanent peace.

As a member of the thirteen-man delegation to Israel, Dr. Poling called on other representatives present to give their views. These were the Rev. John N. Althouse of the First Methodist Church in Shenandoah, Pa.; Dr. Howard M. Le Sourd, dean of Boston Univer-

Free German Again On Humanity Crime

Veit Harlan, one of Germany's best-known film producers, was acquitted at Frankfort for the second time by a Hamburg court on charges of crimes against humanity arising from his "Jew Suess," an anti-Semitic version of a book by Leon Feuchtwanger. The prosecution had demanded a two year sentence and a fine of 105,000 Deutsche marks (about $23,000).

Herr Harlan, who is married to Kristina Soederbaum, Swedish film actress, contended that he had produced the picture on orders of Dr. Joseph Goebbels, Hitler's propaganda chief, refusal to do so would have endangered his life and that of his family, he told the court.

During proceedings testimony against the film producer by a witness provoked an anti-Semitic demonstration that resulted in expressions of regret by Chancellor Konrad Adenauer and John J. McCloy, United States High Commissioner. The witness, Karena Niehoff, of Berlin, has filed suit against a Hamburg newspaper for having charged she was an agent provocateur for the Communists.

He is the brother of Mrs. Simon Carpman, de Bullion Street; and Mrs. Max Ziss, Drolet Street. Kiddush followed. At a dinner-reception that evening, forty-five guests were present. Mrs. Schwartz, mother of the bar-mitzvah, wore a navy-blue silk dress, which had a square neckline, cape-effect sleeves, slim skirt, and fish-tail back; and also a corsage of red roses. Mrs. Carpman wore a navy-blue crepe dress, having a fishtail-back, and round neckline, with cape-effect sleeves, and pink straw hat, trimmed with flowers; and a corsage of pink roses. Mrs. Ziss wore a two-piece polka-dotted silk suit, having three-quarter-length sleeeves, and a Peter Pan collar; her hat was pink straw, in bonnet effect, and her corsage was of white carnations. There were two centrepieces of spring flowers on the head table, and similar floral arrangements on all the tables. The bar-mitzvah cake was in shape of the Torah. The toastmaster was L. Ziss, Laval Avenue. The bar-mitzvah boy spoke in Jewish; and his teacher, Rabbi N. Avrutick, Esplanade Avenue, spoke.

Mesdames Molly Spector, Duluth Street East; M. Gross, Draper Avenue; O. Green, Colonial Avenue; and M. M. Green, Soissons Avenue, entertained at a shower at the Bucharest, honouring their niece, Miss Faye Raicek, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. L. Raicek, de Bullion Street, and fiancee of Philip Wallach, son of Mrs. M. Wallach, of Brooklyn, N. Y., and the late J. Wallach. There were one hundred and twenty-five guests present. Mrs. Spector wore a navy-blue and red sheer suit, with a straw hat of the same colour; Mrs. Gross, grey crepe, with a natural straw hat; Mrs. O. Green, navy-blue silk, with shoes to match, and white straw hat, with blue trimming; Mrs. M. M. Green, a grey crepe dress, with a hat in natural-coloured straw; and Mrs. Raicek wore royal-blue crepe, trimmed with lace, having a V-neckline, and a pink straw hat, trimmed with ribbon in the same colour. Each had a corsage of roses. Miss Raicek, the honouree, was in a navy-blue tissue faille dress, with round neckline, trimmed with rhinestones, with corsage of orchids, a gift of the groom-elect. A variety of spring flowers decorated the table. Mrs. E. Ekstein, of Ottawa, Ont., and Mrs. S. H. Brodkin, of St. Eustache, were present. The wedding will take place on June 18, at Beth Yehuda Synagogue.

Miss Shirley Becker, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. H. Becker, Esplanade Avenue, fiancee of Sol. Ram, 5430 Waverley Street, was entertained at a luncheon by Mrs. M. Steinberg, St. Joseph Boulevard West, at Aux Delices. Six guests were present. Mrs. Steinberg was dressed in a black tissue faille dress, designed with a high, round neckline and straight skirt; and a natural straw hat. Mrs. Becker, mother of the bride-elect, wore a black gabardine suit, made on tailored lines with a black hat, and pink accessories. The honoree was dressed in a navy-blue suit, trimmed with beading, and had navy-blue accessories. A presentation of a period tea set was made. Miss Mildred Goldenberg, 5415 St. Urbain Street, entertained for Miss Becker at a luncheon presentation of an electric griller, at the Chic-N-Coop. Miss Becker wore a pink taffeta dress, with a bustle-back, and a pink straw hat, and navy-blue accessories. Miss Goldenberg wore a bronze-shaded gabardine suit-dress, with a natural straw hat, and blue accessories. Miss Molly Juliver, Clark Street, fiancee of Sydney Becker, brother of the bride-elect, entertained for Miss Becker at theatre and a dinner presentation of a cheque, at the Mandarin Gardens Cafe. Miss Becker wore a blue printed taffeta dress, with a pink straw hat, and blue accessories; and Miss Juliver wore a navy-blue tailored suit, with a white straw hat, and blue accessories. Miss Becker is a bride-elect of May 28.

Conrad Avrum Joseph, son of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Caplovitch, 3859 MacKenzie Avenue, was called to the Reading of the Law at Beth Matisseuh Synagogue, on Saturday, May 13. Kiddush followed. He is the brother of Mildred and Eleanore; and grandson of Mrs. Shlima Caplovitch, Trans Island Avenue, formerly of Papineau Avenue. At a dinner-reception at Little Roumanian Steak House, one hundred and sixty-five guests were present. Mrs. Caplovitch wore a cinnamon-coloured cocktail dress, having a lace trimmed neckline; and a corsage of yellow roses. Mildred wore a navy-blue sheer dress with a full skirt, and V-neckline; and Eleanore wore a navy-blue organdy dress which had appliques of orchids on the skirt. Mrs. Shlima Caplovitch wore a black satin dress, and had a corsage of red roses. Her hat was in black felt, with a spray of spring flowers. There was a centrepiece of variegated flowers, and the bar-mitzvah cake was in the shape of a Bible. The toastmaster was Bill Aronson, Marie Anne Street West; and Jack Quint, Bernard Avenue West, spoke. Hyman Rabinovitch, Laval Avenue, said the prayers. The bar-mitzvah boy's great-uncles: Jack Stober, Esplanade Avenue; Mendel Stober, St. Lawrence Boulevard; and Samuel Caplovitch, Hutchison Street, were at the head table. Mr. and Mrs. S. Stober, godparents of the bar-mitzvah, of Brooklyn, N.Y., were present.

Irving Riddell, 3764 Westmount Boulevard, Montreal, was elected chairman of the 1950 Combined Jewish Appeal campaign at the annual meeting of the Business Men's Council. Three vice-chairmen, who will work with Mr. Riddell, are Gerald Bronfman, Jerry Segall, president of the Jewish Immigrant Aid Society; and Dr. George Streon, honorary co-chairman of the medical division. Mr. Riddell and Mr. Bronfman were co-chairmen of untraded special names last year.

TO MAKE SURVEY OF HEBREW LANGUAGE USE IN U. S.

An exhaustive survey to ascertain the extent of Hebrew language and cultural activity in America has been undertaken by the Commission on Hebrew Language and Culture, it has been announced by Judge Louis E. Levinthal, of Philadelphia, Pa., chairman. The survey, which is the first step in the Commission's effort to develop program for promoting the study and use of Hebrew in the United States and for popularizing Hebrew culture, will be conducted under the chairmanship of Professor Oscar I. Janowsky, of City College of New York.

It will enlist the services of many prominent educators and lay leaders in American Jewish life and is expected to take all of next year to complete. Formed recently because of growing interest created in both Hebrew language and culture by the establishment of the new State of Israel, the Commission is comprised of 120 members, all of whom are prominent Jewish educators and leaders of organized Jewry. The formation of the Commission was initiated by the Histadruth Ivrith (Hebrew Language and Culture Association) which for thirty years has been fostering Hebrew language and cultural development in the United States.

In announcing the start of the survey, Judge Levinthal declared that "the Hebrew language is the key to many centuries of Jewish culture and tradition, so much of which has already been woven into the fabric of modern life. There is much more of tremendous value to civilization to be found in the literature and other cultural expression of the Jewish people. Only through a knowledge of Hebrew can this vast storehouse be unlocked and its priceless treasures made available to all."

Dr. Janowsky, who is Professor of History at City College, is an outstanding scholar, the author of historical works on the problem of minority groups, and the editor of "The American Jew." He recently conducted a survey for the National Jewish Welfare Board to determine the direction which Jewish Center work should take in America.

The foundations for a happy, stable mental outlook are laid in early childhood in the home. The child who grows up knowing he is loved and wanted has a far better chance of developing normally than the boy or girl who lives amid constant bickering, nagging and hostility. Nearly all children begin life with normal mental equipment. It's the early years that count.

ENGAGEMENTS

Mr. and Mrs. I. Brooks, Canterbury Avenue, announce the engagement of their youngest daughter, Violet, to John Sosnow, Villeneuve Street West, son of the late Mr. and Mrs. A. Sosnovitch.

Mr. and Mrs. B. Packer, St. Dominique Street, announce the engagement of their daughter, Mary, to Louis Libenson, son of Mr. and Mrs. M. Libenson, de Bullion Street.

Mr. and Mrs. David Greenspoon, of Ste. Agathe, announce the engagement of their elder daughter, Adele, to David Migicovsky, youngest son of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Migicovsky, 1537 Van Horne Avenue.

APPROACHING MARRIAGES

Mr. and Mrs. M. Wolfovitch, Villeneuve Street West, announce the approaching marriage of their daughter, Dinah, to Shandor Ungar, St. Urbain Street, son of the late Mr. and Mrs. H. Ungar, to take place on June 17, at Berman's Restaurant.

Mr. and Mrs. Nathan Ortenberg, St. Joseph Boulevard West, announce the approaching marriage of their daughter, Charlotte, to Leon Huberman, son of Mr. and Mrs. David Huberman, Lajoie Avenue, which will take place on May 31, in the hall of Young Israel Synagogue.

MARRIAGES

GOLD-MARON

The marriage of Elayne Paula, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lionel M. Maron, 3445 Ridgewood Avenue, to Manuel Theodore Gold, son of Mrs. Moses Gold, Ridgewood Avenue, and the late Mr. Gold, took place at the home of the bride's parents, on Wednesday, May 17, at three o'clock, Rabbi Charles Bender, of Adath Israel Synagogue, officiating, assisted by Rabbi M. S. Cohen, of Shaare Zion Synagogue. The bride was given in marriage by her father. She wore a gown of white Chantilly lace over chiffon, designed with a heart-shaped neckline, and fitted bodice, with long sleeves, and a full skirt. Her finger-length veil of tulle illusion was held by a Juliet cap of orange blossoms; and she carried a white Bible, with a spray bouquet of white orchids. Mrs. Arthur Tratt, sister of the bride, as matron of honor, wore a dress of cocoa-brown lace over taffeta, designed with a V-neckline, and short sleeves, with a straight skirt. She had a matching hat, and carried a bouquet of brown orchids. Dr. Michael Gold was best man for his brother. Calla lilies and white roses were used to decorate; and at the reception, the bride's table was centred with the wedding cake, and arranged with lilies-of-the-valley and baby's breath. Louis Klayman played the violin for the ceremony. Mrs. Maron, mother of the bride, wore a gown of grey lace, and had a hat of white lilacs, with a corsage bouquet of lilies-of-the-valley. Mrs. Gold, mother of the groom, wore a gown of cocoa-brown lace over pink taffeta; with a matching hat, and a corsage bouquet of yellow Tea roses. The bride and groom left to spend their wedding trip in New York, the bride travelling in a grey and yellow woolen suit, with cashmere coat, and grey accessories. The bride attended Trafalgar School for Girls; and Mr. Gold is a graduate in engineering of McGill University.

Social Notes — Montreal

(Additional Montreal Social Notes on Pages Two and Three)

Mr. and Mrs. A. Farber, St. Urbain Street, entertained at a dinner party, with thirty guests, at Epstein's, in celebration of the engagement of their only daughter, Miss Eva Farber, to Bernard Rosen, Champagneur Avenue, son of the late Mr. and Mrs. J. Rosen.

Mrs. M. Applebaum, Notre Dame Street West, entertained at a presentation tea with ten guests present, honouring Miss Esther, Pantel, Esplanade Avenue, and fiancee of Rubin Friedman, son of Mr. and Mrs. H. Friedman, de Vimy Avenue. Snapdragon, roses, and carnations formed the table decoration. Mrs. Applebaum wore a tan faille dress. Miss Pantel wore black crepe, with braiding on the hemline, and made with high neckline and dolman sleeves. She had a white straw hat.

Mr. and Mrs. Jack Uditsky were hosts at a housewarming reception at their home, 137 St. Catherine Road, on two evenings. There were about one hundred guests present. The dining-room table held a centerpiece of mixed spring flowers, with yellow candlesticks and there were spring flowers throughout the house. At the first evening, Mrs. Uditsky received in a black lace dinner gown, with a corsage of red roses; and on the second evening, she wore a navy-blue crepe dress. Mrs. Ben. Gordon, her daughter, Maplewood Avenue; and Mrs. William Uditsky, her daughter-in-law, poured. Mrs. Josh. Uditsky, her daughter-in-law, Van Horne Avenue, cut the ices.

Mr. and Mrs. Philip Dankner, 911 Wilder Avenue, were hosts at a dinner and evening party in honor of Miss Estelle Tishler, City Hall Avenue, fiancee of Max Dankner, Esplanade Avenue, a brother of the host; and a bride-elect of May 28. Mrs. R. Rappaport, of Rochester, N.Y., mother of the groom-elect, poured, assisted by her daughter, Mrs. Jack Lieberman. Others present were: Brian and Riva Joy Dankner, children of the hosts; Mr. and Mrs. A. Tishler, parents of the bride-elect; Mr. and Mrs. Jack Crystal, brother and sister-in-law of the hostess; Mr. and Mrs. Jack Title, brother-in-law and sister of the hostess; Mr. and Mrs. M. J. Segal, and Jack Lieberman, brothers-in-law and sisters of the host, and of the groom-elect; Mr. and Mrs. H. Dankner, brother-in-law and sister of the host, and of the groom-elect; and B. Segal. The table held a centrepiece of variegated seasonal flowers, a gift of the groom-elect. The bride-elect was presented with a bone-china dinner set, service for six.

Mr. and Mrs. William Greenberg, Laval Avenue, entertained at a party celebrating the engagement of their daughter, Miss Lorna Greenberg, fiancee of Sol. Buium, son of Mrs. Adele Buium, Park Avenue, and the late Samuel Buium. There were fifty guests present. Daffodils and carnations decorated the table and there were similar spring flowers on all the other tables. Mrs. Greenberg wore a navy-blue crepe dress, which had a shawl collar, and skirt with peplum effect, and corsage of red roses. Mrs. Buium wore a cinnamon-brown crepe dress, with shawl collar, and pleated skirt, and her corsage was of yellow roses. Miss Greenberg, the honouree, wore a two-piece taffeta suit, in black and white stripes, having a stand-up collar, and slim skirt, and corsage of Tea roses. Mrs. H. Litner, grandmother of the bride-elect, wore a black crepe dress, with sweetheart neckline, and corsage of Tea roses. The wedding will take place on March 17, 1951, at Bnai Jacob Synagogue.

Entertaining for Miss Shirley Becker, Esplanade Avenue, fiancee of Sol. Ram, Waverley Street, and a bride-elect of May 28, were: Mr. and Mrs. S. Hartman, 5322 Trans Island Avenue, at an evening presentation of silver flatware, service for six, with the immediate family present. There were about ten guests present. Variegated spring flowers decorated the table. Mrs. Hartman, the hostess, received, in a green print crepe dress with matching bolero; and Mrs. Becker, mother of the bride-elect, in a blue print crepe dress, with a blue straw hat. Miss Becker, the honouree, wore an ankle-length cocktail dress of pink taffeta. Mr. and Mrs. S. Pinsky, brother-in-law and sister of the groom-elect, Van Horne Avenue, entertained at a dinner-presentation of a cheque. Mrs. Pinsky wore a black gabardine suit, white straw hat and a corsage of white roses; Miss Becker wearing a navy-blue tissue faille dress with a white collar and pockets, white straw hat, and a corsage of red roses.

Mrs. L. Bercovitch, Bagg Avenue, and Mrs. L. Bock, Soissons Avenue, gave a tea at Ruby Foo's for Miss Eleanor (Elsie) Shilkraut, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Shilkraut, Laval Avenue, and fiancee of Jack Cutler, son of Mrs. Sarah Cutler. Mr. Cutler is the grandson of Mrs. Bercovitch; and the nephew of Mrs. Bock. Mrs. Bercovitch wore a black crepe dress, with a black straw hat, trimmed with white flowers; Mrs. Bock, a green silk printed dress, fashioned with a high neckline, and Peter Pan collar, also a natural straw hat, with black velvet trimming. Mrs. Shilkraut, mother of the bride-elect, wore a black wool crepe suit, with a V-neckline, and shawl collar, trimmed with black velvet; and a black straw hat. Miss Shilkraut, the honoree, wore a navy-blue crepe dress, embroidered with white, and styled with a Chinese neckline. Her white straw hat was trimmed with navy-blue, with matching veiling, and red flowers. Sixty guests were present. A variety of spring flowers composed the table centrepiece. The marriage will take place on June 18, at Berman's Restaurant.

Mr. and Mrs. N. Woshinsky, 3870 City Hall Avenue, entertained at a dinner in celebration of their daughter Doris's sixteenth birthday. There were about forty guests present. The table was arranged with variegated spring flowers, lighted blue candles, and a three-layer heart-shaped birthday cake, trimmed with little flowers. Doris is a sister of Mrs. J. Zemel, City Hall Avenue; and of Mrs. S. Tkatch, Laval Avenue. Mrs. Woshinsky received in a black crepe dress, fashioned with a high neckline, short sleeves, and a straight skirt, with side drapery, and a corsage of red roses. Mrs. Zemel assisted, in a navy-blue crepe print dress, having a round neckline, short sleeves, and a slim skirt, with a corsage of pink roses. Mrs. Tkatch, also assisting, wore a navy-blue silk dress with a Chinese-styled neckline, cap sleeves, trimmed with white pique, semi-flared skirt; and a corsage of pink roses. The honouree wore an ankle-length pale-blue taffeta dress, having a Queen Anne double collar, low V-neckline and a full skirt, with a corsage of pink roses and white carnations.

Miss Muriel Latter, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Latter, 229 Mount Royal Avenue West, fiancee of Maurice Kendall, 4649 Jeanne Mance Street, son of the late Mr. and Mrs. J. Kandelshain was entertained at a luncheon. The hostesses were: Misses Zelda Tuchow, 4870 Henri Julien Street, and Anne Rosoph, 4908 Queen Mary Road, at whose home the luncheon was given. Both hostesses are cousins of the bride-elect. Miss Tuchow wore a black crepe dress, with a rhinestone necklace; Miss Rosoph, a black satin dress, with rhinestone buttons; and the bride-elect wore a black faille cocktail dress. Each had a corsage of pink carnations. Mrs. Latter, mother of the bride-elect, wore a black crepe dress, with green beading on the bodice, and a similar corsage. Mrs. P. Tuchow, mother of one hostess, wore a black dress, with multi-colored beading on the yoke; and Mrs. L. Rosoph, mother of the other hostess, wore a black printed dress. Mrs. I. Friedman, Jeanne Mance Street, aunt of the groom-elect, at whose home he lives, wore a grey crepe dress, trimmed with grey satin. The table, set for forty guests, was centred with pink carnations, and variegated seasonal flowers, with pink candles. A presentation of silver flatware, service for six, was made.

Miss Evelyn Greenberg, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. Greenberg, 18 Cuthbert Street, fiancee of Leo Levy, son of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Levy, 4650 Henri Julien Street, was entertained at a linen shower at the Bucharest. The hostesses were: Mesdames Samuel Levy, mother of the groom-elect; J. Kirshner, Waverley Street, grandmother of the bride-elect; S. Bigman, Rivard Street, aunt of the bride-elect; and A. Schmetter, Cuthbert Street, sister of the bride-elect. Receiving, Mrs. Levy wore a printed brown faille dress, with a peplum, and a matching straw hat, trimmed with tulle and flowers, and a corsage of pink roses. Mrs. Kirshner wore a black tissue faille dress, with black beaded embroidery, and a black and white straw hat, and corsage of red roses. Mrs. Bigman wore a brown tissue-faille dress, with embroidered bodice, and a navy-blue hat, trimmed with flowers; and had a corsage of yellow Tea roses. Mrs. Schmetter wore a navy-blue tissue faille dress, with a V-neckline, short sleeves, and a full, pleated skirt, also a white straw hat, with pink flowers and navy-blue veiling, and a corsage of pink roses. Mrs. Greenberg, mother of the bride-elect, wore a navy-blue tissue faille dress, with beaded embroidery on the draped skirt, and a navy-blue straw hat, with a corsage of yellow Tea roses. Miss Greenberg, the honoree, wore a navy-blue brocaded taffeta cocktail dress, designed with a portrait neckline, short, cap sleeves, and a full skirt, with a pink straw sailor-style hat, with flowers on the top, and navy-blue veiling, and had a mauve orchid corsage. The table centrepiece was made up of sweet-peas with variegated seasonal flowers, and lighted, colored tapers. Two [illegible] were present. The marriage will take place on December 24, at Beth David Synagogue.

In 1900 tuberculosis was the first cause of death in Canada. Now it is seventh. This is a considerable victory but it is not enough, for TB remains the leading cause of death for persons between the ages of 16 and 45. This means that tuberculosis is still a great drain on the nation—greater than appears on the surface. Chest x-rays detect hidden TB. Make sure you are healthy. Have a free chest x-ray today.

Nothing is more discouraging than to find lipstick on a cup or grease on a knife or fork when you visit a restaurant. You are entitled to clean, sanitary, service and should insist on it. Unclean service is unhealthy service. Patronize the eating places where cleanliness is the by-word.

Social Notes — Toronto

(Additional Toronto Social Notes on Pages Fourteen and Fifteen)

Mr. and Mrs. William Tater, 185 Grange Avenue, celebrated their twenty-fifth wedding anniversary at a family dinner at the home of his brother-in-law and sister, Mr. and Mrs. T. Caplan, 676 Delaware Avenue. Present were the children of Mr. and Mrs. W. Tater; Mr. and Mrs. Murray Tater, Misses Florence and Arlene Tater, and Harold Tater; also Miss Lottie Cohen, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Tater, Mr. and Mrs. E. Rosen, Mr. and Mrs. Jack Kupsov, Mr. and Mrs. L. Goldblatt, Mr. and Mrs. J. Litvak, and Murray Mudrik. Mrs. Tater wore a black silk print dress, fashioned with high neckline, and three-quarter-length sleeves, and straight skirt, with corsage of twenty-five yellow roses. Vari-coloured spring flowers and lighted pink candles composed the table adornment.

Miss Shirley Cott, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. I. Cott, 414 Manning Avenue, and fiancee of Sol. Blackman, son of Mr. and Mrs. M. Blackman, was entertained at a luncheon at Murray House, by the groom-elect's mother, Mrs. M. Blackman. Receiving sixty-five guests, Mrs. Blackman wore a navy-blue faille dress, having a white pique collar, short sleeves, and straight skirt, with corsage of pink roses. Mrs. Cott was in a dark green crepe dress, designed with a V-neckline, short sleeves, and draped skirt, with corsage of Tea roses. The honouree, in light green taffeta print, fashioned with V-neckline, lapel effect, cap sleeves, and full skirt, had a corsage of yellow roses. Mrs. H. Patt, of Hamilton, was a guest. Vari-coloured spring flowers, and white lighted tapers composed the table adornment. Miss Cott and Mr. Blackman will be married September 3, at Murray House.

Miss Shirlee June Labow, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. David Labow, 592 Christie Street, whose marriage to Donald Karl Sappell, son of Mrs. Anna Sappell, of Los Angeles, Calif., takes place on Sunday, June 11, at McCaul Street Synagogue, was entertained at a tea by her mother, one hundred and twenty-five guests being present. Mrs. Labow wore a lime-green and toast-coloured two-piece pure silk print dress, designed with roll collar, long sleeves, and straight skirt, with corsage of white gardenias, against green feathers. The honouree wore a powder-blue strapless dress, fashioned with lace bodice, and crepe skirt, draped across the hipline, and falling into soft folds at the back, with matching bolero jacket, having a mandarin neckline, three-quarter-length sleeves, and corsage of pink and red roses, on pale blue feathers. Those assisting were: Mesdames Terry O'Donnell, Perry Labow, Jack Labow, Coleman Herman, Hy. Sher, Morris Herman, David Ruby, Lawrence Kine, Earl Balaban, Philip Balaban, and Miss Shirley Daniels. Those who poured were: Mesdames Alec Rose, Rose Stern, Louis Stern, Samuel Balaban, Vera Daniels, Leon Stein, Murray Thomas, and Ben. Liebman. White carnations, snapdragons, and sweetpeas, with white lighted tapers, made up the all-white and silver table centrepiece.

Miss Sylvia Rubinoff, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. H. Rubinoff, 22 Castle Knock Road, whose marriage to Irving Kraft, son of Mr. and Mrs. A. Kraft, 34 Ulster Street, takes place on September 24, at Bais Yehudah Synagogue, was honoured at a miscellaneous shower at Murray House, by the groom-elect's mother, Mrs. A. Kraft. There were one hundred guests. Mrs. A. Kraft wore a black crepe dress, having a high neckline, trimmed with silver beading, short sleeves, and draped skirt, with corsage of white and pink roses. Mrs. H. Rubinoff wore a black crepe dress, with square neckline, trimmed with black lace on shell-pink nylon, cap sleeves, and straight skirt, with draped effect; and corsage of pink roses. Also assisting were: Mrs. A. Unterman, grandmother of the bride-elect, wearing a grey gabardine softly tailored suit, with corsage of pink roses; Mrs. P. Kraft, grandmother of the groom-elect, in a black crepe dress, with high neckline, long sleeves, and straight skirt, with corsage of pink roses; and Miss Shirley Kraft, sister of the groom-elect, wearing a black net and satin dress, designed with high neckline, inset yoke of lace, short sleeves, and full skirt, with corsage of white roses. The honouree wore a navy-blue crepe dress, fashioned with white pique collar, cap sleeves, and straight skirt, with a panel of accordion-pleated taffeta, white straw hat, trimmed with lilacs, and corsage of pink and white roses. Vari-coloured spring flowers composed the centrepiece.

Miss Gale Cohen, daughter of Mrs. Rose Cohen, of Hamilton, and fiancee of Carl Pearce, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. Cohen, of London, England, was entertained at a linen shower, with ninety-five guests, at Murray House. The hostesses were: Mesdames Louis Rubinstein, wearing a black and print crepe dress, with low neckline, three-quarter-length sleeves, and flared skirt, with corsage of pink carnations; Harry Cohen, of Hamilton, in a print crepe dress, having a low-cut neckline, short sleeves, and flared skirt, with pink rose corsage; Louis Smith, in a black and white crepe polka-dot dress, having a high neckline, short sleeves, and pleated-black skirt, with straight front, and corsage of pink roses; Morris Cohen, in a navy-blue and white silk polka-dot dress, designed with low neckline, three-quarter-length sleeves, and flared skirt, with corsage of pink and white roses; and Rose Cohen, mother of the bride-elect, wearing a navy-blue sheer dress, made with square neckline, elbow-length sleeves, and skirt, pleated in panels at the front and back, with corsage of pink and white roses. Mrs. M. Lyons, aunt of the groom-elect, wore a red and white silk dress, having a straight skirt, with matching three-quarter-length sleeved bolero jacket, and corsage of pink roses. The honoree wore a bronze iridescent taffeta dress, fashioned with low neckline, and three-quarter-length sleeves and full skirt, having two large patch pockets, with corsage of yellow roses. The following were out-of-town guests: Mesdames A. Cohen, Alec Schure, Morris Cohen, Joseph Kutas, Harry Schure, Morris Pearlgood, H. Kritzer, Dorothy Rosenberg, H. Kutlatz, Helen Scopp, S. Wolfe, S. Lewis, and Misses Elaine and Shirley Cohen. Numerous spring flowers and white and yellow lighted tapers composed the table arrangement.

TO STUDY INTEGRATION OF ORIENTAL JEWS IN ISRAEL

Through the initiative of the Department of Social Science of the Hebrew University and of the Middle East Department of the Jewish Agency, an investigation into the social problems of the absorption of immigrants began in December, 1949. The aim of the investigation is to find out through intensive research the social integration of the new immigrants, especially those from the Orient, Africa, Turkey, Bulgaria, etc., into Israel, and the problems involved. The research workers intend to examine various conditions of absorption and the measure of the success so far recorded towards a complete social integration.

The investigation is being carried out in eight places throughout Israel. The places chosen for the purpose represent a good cross section of the main methods of absorption. They include different types of villages and settlements, and the homogenity of the immigrants drawn from different lands of origin in these settlements is being examined. The scope of this research will be broadened later.

The investigation is carried out through prolonged observation of the social behaviour of the immigrants under different conditions and in different social institutions; talks, visits and [illegible] with the immigrants directed by a fixed questionnaire. This questionnaire is only used as a key by the research workers, who pursue their inquiries and make their observations in a scientific manner. At the head of this research work there is a directorate in which the two institutions are represented by Professors A. Bonne, M. Buber, A. Nadad, M. Selzer, and Dr. S. Ajzenstadt. The investigation is being carried out and centralized by the Seminary for Social Research of the Hebrew University.

Thousands know 'blue coal' BUDGET PLAN is the Money-Saving way to buy

"IT MAKES BUYING EASIER 3 WAYS"

Yes, and they're right! The 'blue coal' Budget Plan gives you 3 big advantages: 1. Convenient s-p-r-e-a-d out payments on easy terms to suit you. 2. No worries! A two-year-old child was fatally injured and buried at sea, it was disclosed when the United States Army Transport General Muir arrived in Boston, with 881 displaced persons from Europe. The child, Jankel Pasternak, son of Mr. and Mrs. Mendel Pasternak, struck his head on a stanchion during heavy seas. The parents left for their new home in New York City.

Now is the time for good quality citrus fruits. This means, of course, oranges and grapefruit. These breakfast favorites can be used in a variety of ways for other meals such as broiled grapefruit and the familiar orange and grapefruit salads. Nutritionists say one serving of citrus fruit is needed every day.

MARRIAGES

GILSIG-WAINBERG

The marriage of Goldie Rose, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Wolfe Wainberg, 6137 Durocher Avenue, to Rubin Gilsig, son of Mr. and Mrs. David Gilsig, 8151 Birnam Ave., took place at Chevra Kadisha Synagogue on Thursday evening, May 4, at half-past eight o'clock. Rabbi M. Fisch officiating, assisted by Rev. A. Kenner. The bride was given in marriage by her father. Her floor-length gown of white net was fashioned with a low-cut neckline, trimmed with lace, long sleeves, and fitted bodice, with a flared skirt. Her lace and net headdress held her waist-length veil; and she carried a mauve orchid, with a bible, and white streamers. Miss Helen Wainberg, sister of the bride, was maid of honor, wearing a long dress designed with a grey-pink fitted, strapless, net bodice, with a full, triple-net skirt; and she had a grey-pink headdress, with a long veil, and carried a bouquet of blue-dyed roses. Sheila Lightman and Marilyn Wainberg, nieces of the bride, were junior bridesmaids. The former was dressed in a low-cut pink net dress; and the latter, in yellow taffeta. Their headdresses matched their dresses; and they carried muff-bouquets of roses. Nathan Gilsig, brother of the groom, was best man; and the ushers were Sol. and Ben. Wainberg, Norman Lightman, Joseph Freeman, Jerry Gilsig, and Moe Wineberg. Mark Wainberg, nephew of the bride, was page-boy. "Because" was sung during the ceremony. For the reception, the bride's table was adorned with seasonal flowers. Receiving, Mrs. Gilsig, mother of the groom, wore blue, with a blue hat, trimmed with blue flowers; long, blue gloves, and a corsage of red roses. Mrs. Wainberg, mother of the bride, who was in the hospital, was unable to be present. The bride and groom spent their wedding trip in New York, the bride travelling in a pink gabardine suit, with a white orchid corsage. They are living at the home of the groom's parents.

The Popularity Of Hebraic Names Among The English

BY RABBI DR. S. RAPPAPORT

A list of the ten most popular English boys' and girls' names of 1948, published in the Johannesburg Star recently, makes interesting reading: it reflects the main components which went into the making of modern civilisation: the Hebraic-Christian tradition, the classical stand, the Germanic influence. The list was compiled from the announcements of births which appeared in the London Times during the last year and shows a characteristic preponderance of Hebraic names.

Four out of the ten most popular boy's names, the first three and the tenth, are of Biblical Hebraic origin: pride of place is held by John, the English form of the Hebrew Jochanan, the name of a general of Israel in the time of Nebuchadnezzar, and in its Greek from Joannes, a frequent name in the New Testament. John is followed by David, the name of the great King of Israel, after which comes Michael, the name of the father of one of the twelve spies and of one of the Archangels mentioned in the Book of Daniel.

The fourth Biblical name in the list is James, the English form of Jacob. Two of the Biblical names, David and Michael are pure Old Testament names, while John and James became part of English usage via the New Testament. Of the rest of the boys' names are Christian-Greek: Peter and Christopher; one classical-Roman: Anthony; two Germanic: Charles and Robert.

The girl's names are even more Biblical: the first four places of the ten most frequent names are held by those of Hebrew origin. The most frequent is Ann or Anne, the Biblical Hannah, the name of the mother of the Prophet Samuel and of a pious woman mentioned in the gospel of Luke; then follows Mary, the Biblical Miriam, the name of Moses' sister and Jesus' mother; the next place is held by Elizabeth, the name of the wife of Aaron and the mother of John the Baptist.

Then follows Jane, the feminine form of John, which, as Johanna, occurs in the Talmud (Sota 22a) and in the gospel of Luke; follows Susan, the Hebrew Shoshana, meaning Lily or Rose, the name of the heroine of an apocryphal book of ancient Hebrew literature. The fifth Biblical name in the book is Sarah. The rest of the girls' names are made up of one classic Greek: Penelope; one Christian-Greek: Margaret; two of Germanic origin: Caroline and Frances.

It seems that the proportional number of Biblical names among Jewish children is much smaller.

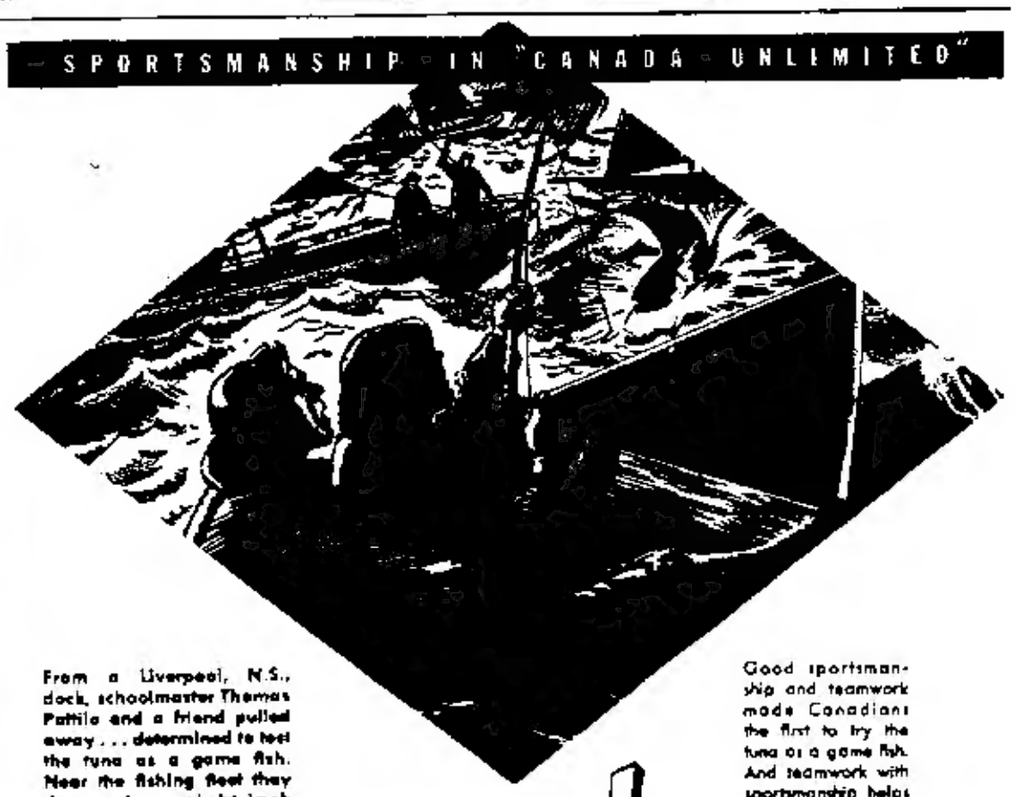
— SPORTSMANSHIP — IN "CANADA — UNLIMITED"



From a Liverpool, N.S., dock, schoolmaster Thomas Pattillo and a friend pulled away . . . determined to test the tuna as a game fish. Near the fishing fleet they dropped an eight-inch homemade hook and 30 fathoms of codline.

Suddenly a tuna struck . . . their story that through the steel. Angry fishermen watched them swamp a small boat, then slashed their line. But Pattillo was undaunted. Later in 1871 he tried again . . . and landed a gleaming, 600-pound bluefin. Tuna fishing, for sport, had been born.

First! in Canada Unlimited

Good sportsmanship and teamwork made Canadians the first to try the tuna as a game fish. And teamwork with sportsmanship helps you, too. Together they keep your opportunities for work and play in Canada . . . unlimited.

CLASS IN COOKERY

PRIZE POPPY SEED CAKE

one-half cup butter
one cup sugar
two cups all-purpose flour
one cup milk
one-half teaspoon salt
two large eggs
two teaspoons baking powder
one cup poppy-seeds
grated rind of one orange; or one-half teaspoon almond flavoring

Soak poppy seeds in milk for one hour. Then cream butter and sugar together; add beaten egg-yolks, and mix until smooth. Gradually add sifted dry ingredients alternately with the milk and poppy seeds. Beat well, and then add flavoring, followed by stiffly-beaten egg-whites. Pour into a well-greased eight-by-ten-inch pan, and bake in a 350-degree oven for about three-quarters of an hour. When cool, sprinkle sifted powdered sugar over the top of the cake.

Mrs. Abrosha Wigdor,
1819 Von Horne Avenue, Montreal.

SUGAR COOKIES

one-half cup butter
three-quarters cup granulated sugar two eggs
two and one-half cups flour
two teaspoons baking powder
one-half teaspoon salt
one teaspoon vanilla

Cream butter well; add sugar, and cream together until light. Add well-beaten eggs, and vanilla, and mix well. Sift together baking powder, flour and salt, then add small amount of flour mixture, at a time, to the butter mixture, until it is absorbed and a dough is formed. Chill until firm, then roll out and cut with cookie cutter. Sprinkle on top with white sugar and cinnamon. Bake twelve minutes in moderate oven of 350 degrees.

Broadening The Public Relations Policy Of The Jewish Community

BY SAUL HAYES, OF MONTREAL, NATIONAL EXECUTIVE DIRECTOR OF THE CANADIAN JEWISH CONGRESS

The Public Relations policy of the Jewish community of Canada is undergoing an important evolution in keeping with the situation in intergroup relations in Canada. The decision to assign Ephraim Michael Rosenzweig, formerly Executive Director of the Jewish Community Council, of Akron, Ohio, as National Director of the Joint Public Relations Committee of the Congress and Bnai Brith indicates the seriousness of this Committee in implementing its broad program of community relations. The frequency of cases of violence or extreme anti-Semitism in the country today is no measure of the importance of the Public Relations problem.

It is the view of our Committee that the present period of relaxed social tension offers the Jewish community a challenge to establish the status of the community and of all sections of the Canadian population on a permanently sound and secure basis. The present is the most opportune time to establish in law and in practice the basic rights of Canadians to equality of treatment and of opportunity. Legislation must be enacted to protect the rights of every Canadian to equality in recreation, employment, housing, education, vocational training, freedom of movement and other rights. It is an extension and not a negation of the basic freedoms which are the web and woof of the political traditions of our life. This is the overwhelming feeling of all who have thought deeply on this problem.

Our experience in recent years has indicated that the time has come for specific legislation outlawing the pernicious discriminatory clauses in property deeds. It is insufficient to rely upon the liberal interpretation of the courts. These are subject to reversal by other courts and have, in fact, been reversed to the detriment of the liberal movement for equality. There is a sufficient body of experience to indicate that fair employment practices legislation is feasible and necessary and that their beneficial results cannot be secured adequately in any other manner. At the same time general legislation guaranteeing equality of treatment, either directly or under licensing powers, are proving useful and must be systematically extended and their implementation must be carefully observed.

The fundamental educational program for the advancement of egalitarian ideals must also be continued and intensified. The press of Canada has taken an editorial position firmly in favor of this movement and its editorial influence in this direction must be utilized to the full. Other media such as radio, films, the pulpit, and the schools, should be utilized frequently in this program.

Fortunately flagrant cases of anti-Jewish discrimination are not as frequent as they have been in the past. However, it is nevertheless the duty of the Public Relations Committee to combat such instances as vigorously as possible. At the present time our Committee has a number of cases before the courts. This part of the program will most likely be intensified as circumstances will warrant.

The Joint Public Relations Committee is formulating its policies in immediate response to the expressed wishes of the Jewish communities across Canada. These communities have expressed themselves with a large degree of unanimity in favor of an intensification of this program. The appointment of a full-time director of Public Relations work in Canada for the first time in the history of Canadian Jewry is an indication of the determination of the Committee to destroy the vestiges of prejudice in this country.

gested that the accomplishments of the denazification program far outweighed its shortcomings. If the United States has erred in its treatment of Germany, he said, the error has been on the side of decency.

He conceded that the French and British were more severe in their treatment of the total German population, but he noted that those countries have larger staffs in Germany than does the United States, even though the American zone is larger than either the British or the French and contains a larger segment of the population.

The British have 6,000 British civilian government personnel, the French 4,000 and the Americans only 1,700, which must be reduced shortly to 1,400.

Mr. Butterwieser's speech prepared for the A. D. L. meeting had the approval of John J. McCloy, United States High Commissioner for Germany.

sity's School of Public Relations, and Victor G. Reuther, educational director of the United Automobile Workers of America, C. I. O.

Mr. Reuther reported that Jews in border settlements in Israel were forced to divide their time between building homes and military guard duty. He termed this "a crime against humanity" and waste of resources.

Dr. Le Saurd ventured "a guess" that the British desired to postpone permanent peace with Israel to sell more goods to Arabs.

LOCAL AGENCIES

central agencies, Mr. Lurie continues, pointing out that they include programs of Jewish education, internal and external community relations, vocational agencies, free-loan societies, community newspapers, arbitration and organizations for dealing with communal problems of kashruth. One of the most significant developments in present Jewish communal life is the increasing interest which local central agencies are showing in the programs and policies of the national and overseas agencies which seek their support.

"The desire for more intensive local participation in guiding the nature and extent of national programs has been sharpened by the overwhelming overseas needs, by the increasing demands of national agency programs, as well as by the pressures for the continuing support of essential local services," Mr. Lurie says. "The conviction is growing in local communities that they should devote to programs and budgets of national and overseas agencies the same kind of careful analysis and evaluation to which local needs and budgets are subjected. Central community organizations are now developing procedures for greater understanding and improved relationships between national agencies and local communities. In this area the work of national committees of the CJFWF has assumed increasing importance."

This expansion of community responsibility engendered a parallel growth in the participation of the various social and cultural groups in the affairs of the central Jewish organization. Mr. Lurie writes:

"Where the central organization enters upon programs touching the basic interests of all groups, increased participation has followed. An example of this is the high index of community participation in the over-all campaigns of recent years seeking funds for the whole gamut of local, national and overseas causes." As a result of these developments there is a fairly widespread acceptance of the "principle of voluntary self-taxation," Mr. Lurie explains, concluding that in this way nearly all Jewish programs and interests are supported by the cooperative efforts of the whole community.

A selection of more than 50 books dealing with every phase of Zionism and the rebuilding of Israel was presented to the White House by the Zionist Organization of America for addition to President Truman's library. The presentation was made by Professor Abraham I. Katsh, of New York, national chairman of the ZOA Commission on Education and Culture, who was accompanied to the White House by I. S. Turover, of Washington, D.C., member of the National ZOA Executive Committee and president of the Seaboard Region. The collection of books includes the authorized Jewish version of the Bible; histories, biographies, travel descriptions, and reference works of all kinds. Also included was a copy of "Hebrew Self-Taught" which Professor Katsh commended to the attention of any members of President Truman's staff who might be interested.

Earlier during the current academic year, Brandeis University had announced the establishment of two other permanently endowed chairs, the Max Richter in political science, established by the family of the late New York philanthropist, and the Sadye Genis chair in biology, established by the Genis family of Los Angeles, Calif. The Rita H. Aronstam Foundation was established by Louis Aronstam, husband of the late Mrs. Aronstam, who had long been active in various Southern educational and philanthropic endeavors centering in Atlanta. The Foundation seeks to continue the charitable and educational interests she sponsored during her lifetime.

A GLIMPSE OF ISRAEL

BY GLEN HADASH

To-day it is fashionable to make a visit to Israel and to return full of statistics and praise for the new State and its progress. Indeed, nine tenths of most Anglo-Jewish periodicals are devoted to reports of returning delegates and the speeches of visiting Israelis.

Despite all this, however, it is still scarcely possible for the average Jew outside the country to pierce this screen of propaganda in order to ascertain the true nature of conditions in Israel, or the real problems he will have to face should he contemplate personal emigration. Perhaps therefore, the writer can throw some light on this subject by setting out one or two of his own experiences and observations as a newcomer to Israel.

It is difficult, outside Israel, to appreciate how important it is for the newcomer to be able to speak and write Hebrew. It is not sufficient to have some colloquial knowledge of the language. If one really wants to succeed in the new State one must know Hebrew thoroughly. The entire business of the country is conducted in the language; and although one can get along in Yiddish or German, or English, as far as speech is concerned, as soon as one sets pen to paper Hebrew becomes essential.

Without a knowledge of the language one is unable to read notices, directions, announcements, etc., whether they be in buildings or in the streets. Even in departments dealing solely with new immigrants the same disregard for one's shortcomings is displayed, as even here all notices and information appear in Hebrew only. Pity, therefore, the poor immigrant, who, when seeking some particular information, is coldly referred to notices which he is unable to read.

Another thing which the Anglo-Saxon emigrant finds exasperating is the complete lack of organisational ability displayed by innumerable offices and departments. One criticizes many British Government offices in this way, but in comparison with their counterparts in Israel they are the epitome of super-efficiency. The postal services are one example. A letter posted in Haifa or Jerusalem takes anything up to a week to reach its destination in Tel-Aviv, some thirty and fifty miles away. Even letters posted within Tel-Aviv itself take two days before delivery, and under no circumstances will they arrive the same day unless sent by "express" (for which one pays a surcharge of tenpence above the normal fourpenny postage). It is easy to imagine the effect this must have on business within the country, particularly in view of the equally deplorable state of the telephone system.

Of course, there are many excellent and ready-made excuses one can offer in Israel for inefficiency. The war, the newness of the State, or the failure of the British to apprentice local people to Government work. All are true. But as an emigrant friend from Manchester said to me the other day: "I realize the State might have been born in 1948, but the officials weren't." That remark goes to one of the roots of the trouble. Many officials are unable to operate smooth-running departments simply because they have not, primarily, the ability to organize themselves.

Take a small point—enquiry clerks. An efficient enquiry clerk can do a great deal towards pacifying an irate enquirer or intending troublemaker. With a cheerful alert greeting and a display of willingness he can smooth an angry visitor and so ease the task of his employer. However, in Israel if one is lucky enough to find an enquiry clerk who is not (a) eating (b) reading the newspaper (c) chatting to a group of friends or (d) missing completely, then one can at least guarantee two or three false starts before being directed correctly. Yet to suggest to the employing official that it is not the enquiry clerk's place to regard all enquirers as natural enemies is to be greeted with the inevitable shrug of the shoulders and "What can I do?"

The preceding paragraph, unfortunately, suggests that having overcome the bogey of the enquiry clerk the visitor's troubles are over. Far from it, however. Having found the correct office, the official sought invariably will be (a) at a Committee Meeting (b) just going to a Committee Meeting (c) out of the country (d) out of town (e) sick or (f) just out. If none of the foregoing apply, he will be only able to give scant attention to one's problem, because (looking importantly at his watch a dozen times): "I am expecting visiting overseas delegates" (to whom, no doubt, he explains at length how efficiently his department deals with emigrant problems).

Again, to those of us thoroughly used to the patient orderly queues of Britain, the extraordinary scenes of semi-violence and emotion which take place in many offices is both astonishing and bewildering. Heated arguments, culminating in strong men shedding tears of frustration and exasperation, have been witnessed. The wild scattering of papers and documents around the room is also not unknown.

And Israeli queues have a character all their own. For example, in many buildings there are always sizeable groups of people awaiting various officials. When the official begins interviewing he takes a couple of people nearest the door, while the remainder shuffle themselves into some sort of order outside the door. Everybody waits patiently for about ten minutes until somebody at the back decides it is about time this particular interview ended and his own began. He, therefore, seizes the door-knob, pushes into the room, and regardless of the interview already proceeding, begins his own tale of woe.

This is too much for the others, naturally, who surge into the room and array themselves in a wild gesticulating crowd around the official. Not only this, but the groups who have been standing outside other doors find themselves unable to resist this rush, and they too join the melee. By the time order has been restored the harassed official has decided that he needs a cup of coffee, and half the morning has gone.

It is not the purpose of this article to argue the Zionist cause. This is already done well enough, and the achievements are obvious. But what is not presented well enough is the land to which the emigrant is coming. Life in Israel to-day is harsh, particularly in the attitude of one individual to the other. The newcomer can neither look for a helping hand, nor for a smoother path than his predecessors, for the philosophy of the older inhabitant towards the new immigrant can be summed up in five words: "I struggled - so you struggle." It is this attitude — struggling for struggling's sake — for which the emigrant must be prepared. With these facts appreciated and squarely faced, the new immigrants can hope, eventually, to carve his small niche in this new-old land. If he be taken by surprise — then he will find life in Israel truly "brutal".

This article is from the Jewish Monthly.

ISRAEL PLACES HUGE ORDER IN U. S.

American drug manufacturers can easily meet the competition of European producers in price and quality, according to Dr. Isaac Kovelman, adviser to the pharmaceutical section of the Ministry of Health of Israel, who returned to Israel after a three-and-a-half-month purchasing trip in the U.S.

Dr. Kovelman said he had placed $1,500,000 in orders for hospital supplies and building materials. He said Israel, which formerly bought its antibiotics from England, now makes its purchases in the United States. Much of the supplies and materials purchased by the Israeli representative will be used in the enlargement of the Beilinson Hospital, near Tel Aviv, he said.

Of the amount spent, Dr. Kovelman said that $1,000,000 had been allocated by the Export-Import Bank, while the balance was supplied out of Israeli general funds.

MADE INSTRUMENT USED IN NOSE SURGERY

Dr. Reuben Kayser, fifty-two, otolaryngologist and plastic surgeon, died in a Palm Beach, Fla., hospital. He lived at 442 Bay Ridge Parkway, Brooklyn, N.Y., and had offices at 3 East Sixty-sixth Street.

Dr. Kayser was assistant surgeon at Manhattan and Brooklyn Eye and Ear Hospitals, adjunct surgeon at Israel Zion Division of Maimonides Hospital in Brooklyn and assistant otolaryngologist at Brooklyn's Samaritan Hospital. He was a fellow of the American College of Surgeons, the American Academy of Opthalmology and Otolaryngology and the American Otorhinologic Society for Advancement in Plastic and Reconstructive Surgery.

During World II, he designed the "Kayser Director," a surgical instrument known as an "elevator," which quickened the operation of reshaping the nose and is used extensively now.

Dr. Kayser was born in New York City. He was graduated from City College in 1918 and Cornell University Medical College in 1922. He interned at Bellevue Hospital in 1923 and after a year as a resident doctor at Mount Sinai Hospital joined the staff of the Greenpoint Hospital in Brooklyn in 1926 as assistant otolaryngologist, where he remained until 1943. He was a member of the Kings County Medical Society, secretary of its otolaryngology section and a contributor to "The American Journal of Surgery" and "The Archives of Otolaryngology."

Surviving are his father, Louis Kayser; a brother, Alexander Kayser, and a sister, Mrs. Rose Kaye.

The New Plan Of Studies At The Hebrew University In Israel

BY PROFESSOR ALEXANDER M. DUSHKIN, DIRECTOR OF UNDERGRADUATE STUDIES

The spirit of "nevertheless", of which we speak as having characterized the entire Zionist effort, has found renewed expression in the remarkable push-forward in the growth of the Hebrew University during the past year, a most difficult year, indeed. In "Exile", away from its academic home on Mount Scopus, away from camps, library, laboratories and lecture halls, the University has nevertheless in these trying circumstances found the necessary strength to initiate four new and grand undertakings; the Medical School, the Faculty of Law, the Seminary for Leaders of Adult Education and the long awaited programme of Undergraduate Studies leading to the B. A. degree.

This year there has been a rush of young people back to their studies after their release from the army; the registration at the University having increased since April 1949 from 870 to 1400 students. To accommodate new schools, new departments, and new schools the University has had to spread itself temporarily over 22 buildings in various parts of the city, mostly in rented monasteries and in abandoned public buildings. Despite apparent disorder and fantastic emergency improvisations the studies are nevertheless proceeding amazingly well in a manner worthy of the pioneering tradition of Israel.

My particular "corner of the garden" is that of setting into operation the programme of undergraduate studies in the Faculties of the Humanities. To understand the character of this task it is necessary to keep in mind that the University was built from the top downward. During the first years of its existence it was a graduate institute only. When later it began to concern itself with teaching, it offered courses leading directly to the M. A. degree without the intermediate stage of the B. A. In part this was motivated by the anxious concern of the University founders to establish from the outset a very high standard of research and scholarship in the midst of the levantine Middle East, where missionary groups and other foreign bodies have been giving to "natives" so called higher education on a low level.

In part, however, it was also due to the aristocratic influence of continental universities in which many members of the Hebrew University faculty had received their training; a tradition in which the emphasis was upon the elite student capable of achieving excellence in scholarship and research, to the neglect of the average rank and file young person, who wanted higher education but could not make the grade of advanced specialised scholarship. The practice was for secondary school graduates to begin their specialisation immediately upon entering the University, choosing three fields of concentration, a major and two minors, and devoting themselves exclusively to these three studies.

The students attended lectures at will and were examined only when they felt themselves ready for final examinations in each field of study, usually after four or five years. Frequently those fields were closely allied, with the result that the good student achieved a thorough intensive education, albeit of narrow scope, but the average student floundered and got lost somewhere in the process of completing his course of studies or getting final credits for any part of it.

As far back as 1937 some of us who were the "Anglo-Saxon contingent" of the faculty led by the late Dr. Magnes and Prof. Roth, began to urge the introduction of intermediate studies leading to the B. A. degree; not only as an academic help to the masses of our students but also as the means of stimulating general college education for cultured citizenship. In 1939 came the war, followed by historic upheavals and the drama of liberation. It was only in 1949 that the decision of the University taken several years earlier to implement the plan as finally shaped by a committee headed by Prof. B. Dinaburg was put into my hands for execution. Even now it has been introduced only in the Humanities, the other Faculties of the University watching the experiment with no great disposition to follow hastily.

The plan is a synthesis of the American college idea and the realities in Israel. It accepts the need (a) to erect an educational bridge between adolescent exploration and adult specialisation, and (b) to establish a common yet differentiated foundation for cultured community living. On the other hand the Undergraduate Studies do not constitute a separate College, but continue as an integral part of an institution whose essential spirit continues to be that of serious scholarship and research. The studies are geared to a somewhat higher level in the usual American colleges. Without deprecating the many advantages of American college youth, it is fair to say that Israel university youth are, on the whole, more earnest students, somewhat older and more advanced. (One practical reason, the Israeli school week is six days as against the American five-day week). Consequently the undergraduate course is planned for three years. It divides the students' time about equally between general or basic studies and specialised studies. There is a progression of emphasis on specialisation but the attempt is made throughout to have the student realise that besides preparing for creative productivity he must engage in continuous self-education as man and as citizen.

In the Basic Studies three subjects are obligatory for all students; Hebrew expression, written and oral; a Survey of Jewish History; and a Survey of Hebrew Literature. These obligatory subjects in Judaica are designed to foster the common basis of Israeli culture in the midst of disparate backgrounds and origins and of conflicting party ideologies.

Two subjects can be elected from a group of courses including at present (and in the immediate future) the following: — Introduction to Philosophy, the Development of the Natural Sciences, a Survey of the Social Sciences, Masterpieces of World Literature, Appreciation of the Arts, Western Civilization, Classic Civilization and the Civilization of the Near East. Every student will be required to continue on University level two years of study of one foreign language, English, French, Arabic, Latin, and Greek (examination in some Western language will be required of these studying classical languages or Arabic). Other languages are offered but not as part of the basic Studies.

In the Specialized Fields (Hugim) the student may choose two fields (one "central" or major and one "supplementary" or minor) from the entire range offered in the Humanities at the University including various aspects of Judaica, of Palestinology and Archaeology, Social Sciences, Philosophy, Ancient and Modern Literatures and Languages, Mathematics, Psychology and Pedagogy. In the Basic Studies annual examinations will be held in each subject (with intermediate semester tests); but in the Special Fields the current practice will continue of giving final examinations only at the end of the total three year period of study.

The general method of teaching in the Basic Studies is the Shiur or Lecture and the Targil or Practicum. In some courses both are in the hands of the same teacher, in others the lectures are given in "units" by various members of the Faculty and the practicum is taught by section instructors. In the specialised studies seminars are added to the above, requiring students to engage in individual projects.

Beyond classroom studies the new undergraduate plan encourages extra-curricular activity to a much greater degree than previously practised at the Hebrew University. Hitherto student activities were largely confined to "student welfare" and to political discussion. There were many reasons for this limitation of interests — pre-occupation with studies, student poverty and consequent need for supplementary earning, lack of campus facilities and the like. Within the short time since the opening of the academic year the following extra-curricular activities seem to have taken firm root; string orchestra, choral society, three dance groups, two fine art groups, a debating society, an economist club and an overseas students organization concerning itself with hiking, discussions, etc. The physical education and sports programme is being reorganized and several sport groups have come into existence.

Considering the great difficulties of time and circumstance in which the new plan commenced its career, the progress made has been quite gratifying. The response both of the public and of the student-body is on the whole enthusiastic. To be sure, there are some earnest "Sabras" who are impatient with "collegiate" studies, and wish to get on more quickly with their careers, but they too are learning the important lesson of "general education in a free society". The hope is that before long the B.A. degree in Israel will become as basic a requirement for a further professional education as it is in the U.S. and elsewhere.

Already, students of the University Education Department preparing to teach in the secondary schools will be required to devote one complete year to pedagogic training after completing the three year B.A. course. In the Humanities a two-year course toward the M.A. will in the future be given only to those who will have received the undergraduate degree. Similar arrangements may in time be made in the Physical Sciences, in Law, in Social Service, in Civil Service and in other fields. This is a new venture in citizen education and if continued in the spirit of constructive experimentation should prove of untold value to the new state of Israel.

Preparing Ahead · For A Healthy Judaism

BY RABBI NORMAN N. SHAPIRO, OF GOEL TZEDEC SYNAGOGUE, TORONTO

As the year approaches the climax for the synagogue attender, the Rabbis gird their loins for a summer of study and preparation for the coming season. The business of Judaism is a never ending one and while the layman thinks of the seaside and the cottage, the Rabbi completes his plans for the conventions and field trips so that each successive year in the synagogue can be called a banner year.

This year, of course, is no exception, and there are many new phases of synagogue and Jewish life that will be introduced again in the fall. This, as all the years in the Jewish calendar, is a year of transition, even more so than in past years if that be possible. The theme of the year and possibly of the following year or two will probably be: "Where Do We Go From Here?"

The time has come for us to take a very close inventory, and see what we have in the storehouse of Jewish custom and ceremony. What things must be dusted off, and made ready for more useful and beautiful service, and what things must be wrapped in the tissues of safekeeping until the time when again they will be shown to the children, and the children's children as part of a beautiful heritage, as you would heirlooms.

All over the world we see a revitalized Jewry, a young Jewry, a virile Jewry plunging ahead with the same spirit that prompted the Pioneer Americans to build one of the greatest countries on earth, the same spirit that has characterized the Canadian who fights the elements to retrieve the riches and untouched resources that are making Canada take her rightful place in the forefront among the nations. It is a time for building and planning and executing. It is a time of change and compromise, it is a time of danger. We musn't forget that. We must remember that the undercurrent of the third world war is being heard only by those far-sighted individuals who have close contact with foreign powers and new weapons.

What of the alarming resurgence of Nazism in Germany? What of the ugly Communist sounds echoing from Russia and China? What of the new bunds and groups that thrive in Italy? Just what is this Iron Curtain? Is it a screen to hide the newest atrocities from the rest of the world, is it a darkened room where the secrets that can lead only to the grave are being concocted?

Strange, is it not, that when all other nations are faintly becoming aware of the new menace of war, that the Jew should go on in the same patterns of his forefathers, building instead of destroying lives and values as his neighbors do. Would that the world could learn the eternal lessons and secrets of survival from the humble Jew, the man who could boast of no country until two years ago. The pride of possession and the responsibilities that accrue to the Jew through this possession will cause the land of Israel to emerge from the dust and rubble of the last weapon fully as alive and virile as it was when the destructive forces erased other countries, as in the days of old.

And so, in keeping with the change in the world, the change in the political outlook, the changes in the physical terrain and the changes that are as yet in progress, the Jew is called upon to re-establish along with his land, his faith in his religion, and his faith in the future. Day and night the greatest minds in Jewry are at work trying to compound a rational pattern by which the Jew may live. The beauty of Judaism is in its definite but flexible outlines. Intrinsically the ingredients are the same, but the pattern is wide in its range and beauty.

A figure is arising both in the diaspora and in Israel, a figure of a Jew with a face and bearing as decisive as that of the statue of the Minute Man, a figure as definite as each one of these determined men who raised the flag on Iwo Jima, as certain as that of the stone replica of Sir John A. McDonald. A man and a nation of direction and purpose. A man with aims and precepts. A man with principle and ethics. A leader among men and the nations. A teacher among children. A tower of strength for the dubious. An example for the lost of this generation and the last.

Conservative Judaism is about to take its place as the spearhead among our people, pointing out a revitalized way of life wherein everyone can find his place in the dawn of a Jewish revival. Come to your synagogues because your Rabbis are bringing you words of good doctrine. Learn how you, too, can feel a part of the rich Jewish pattern. There is a place in Conservative Judaism for you. The Rabbi is preparing to help you find it.

His days and nights are dedicated to you. His work is predicated on your welfare and spiritual well-being. He is the doctor of spiritual ills and as quickly as medicine is discovering the fabulous scope of its new drugs and antibiotics, so the Rabbi is armed with the cures, and reasons for the causes of Judaism. Help yourself to a healthy Judaism. Plan ahead with the Rabbi for the next year of Jewish living.
